Sehwag's hair raising tale

Nayan Sakhuja

"It feels great to leave behind the bald days. The hair transplant has made me look ten years younger. The best part is that my wife is very impressed with my new look." said a much relieved Virender Sehwag who has won over million hearts with his cricket. Viru, as he is popularly called, sported a casual look at the endorsement of the Direct Hair Implantation by Asian Roots in the capital. Fed up of his bald plate, the vice captain of the Indian Cricket Team went under the treatment of hair restoration.

Sehwag told what made him undergo hair restoration sessions, "I had started loosing hair and became completely bald. Hence, I decided to undergo this treatment." Although he agrees that he had his set of apprehensions before he underwent the transplant,

"Initially, I was scared to undergo this treatment. But once I spoke to my doctors they pacified me. They told me that it won't be painful at all."

Later his concerns were cleared when he went through with the treatment. "While the treatment was going on I realised it was simple and pain free. It was completely a pain-free session without any stitches or surgery and that was the best part of it. After the treatment I had gone back to my practice sessions and routine life. The only thing I didn't do was heavy weight training for almost ten days. I am very happy with the result and recommend it to everyone," he said.

Remarking whether Sehwag had a hairstyle in mind since he got his crowning glory back, he said, "I have curly hair and that is why I can't have a hairstyle of my choice. As of now, I am happy to get my natural hair back."

So will we get to see more of him in front of camera now? "You look good when you have hair and that's what makes you look good in front of the camera. Hair is an essential part to look good and of course, it is a confidence booster."

However, he will continue to wear a bandana under his helmet during the matches. "The bandana will protect my head when the helmet gets wet. There is a chance that I may lose some hair if I don't wear it."
